DR. MACGOWAN's interesting paper on Chiness Guilds, published in the Journal of the mail of the 25th March, is to leave Singspore at noon to-day for Saigon and Hongkong. This China Branch of the Royal Asiatic Society, packet brings replies to letters despatched from and from which we published some extracts Hongkong on the 15th February. a day or two ago, throws a flood of light on a subject of very great importance. Macgowan quotes Consul Giles's remark spore. The Bobr is a new addition to the Russian squadron in the Pacific. She exchanged that " Foreign merchants regard them [the salutes with the Andacious and the shore battery. guilds] with a certain amount of awe, for they are often made to feel keenly enough Service will be held to-morrow morning, a the influence which those institutions exert eleven o'clock, on board the American barque over every branch of trade." The learned Annie Johnson, by the Rov. A. G. Goldsmith Seamen's Chaplain. The Bethel flag will author himself, however, has formed rather a favourable opinion of the guilds, and says. that " when foreign merchants come to understand these institutions better they will discover that but for them the course of true commerce would not run as smoothly as it now does." In the short discussion which followed the reading of the paper at the meeting of the Society Mr. KINGSMILL pointed out that guilds had sprung up owing tives forming the crew of the cruiser Filipinas. -to the absence of a civil code in China, and that it was the same in Europe from the 11th to the 15th century, when there was criminal jurisprudence but no civil law, The same idea was worked out more fully by the Rev. Since I heard that I've taken very I think there is not very much that is new in it. little interest in figures."-Mr. Guthrie might Still it is an Ordinance which received very which took us a great deal of time, and I think the wording and details of the Ordinance have been very much improved. It repeals in full Ordinances 11 of 1864, 8 of 1872, and 24 of 1882, and also sections of Ordinances 7 of 1868 and 3 of 1865. The first addition which I shall allude to is contained in clause 5. In the matter of exemptions we have exempted solicitor's clerks, and in subsection f editors of newspapers in the colony and their staff. When I arrived in the colony I found there were very few exemptions indeed according to the Ordinance, and when I came to draw up the first jury list as Registrar I thought it my duty to include all those not exempted, and I came in for a certain amount of criticism for this unnecessary innovation, but I thought myself perfectly justified in doing it as I only acted according to the strict letter of the law, and I included editors and their staff. They were exempted by the Legislative Council under another section altogether and they have not been put on since. But as I was introducing a new Ordinance and thought they could to be exempted I thought the proper way of doing so was by making an express exemption in their favour, and this proposal of mine was received by the Law Commission. Now, instead of being dependent on the Legislative Council, which might or might not exempt them, they will be label. Sold wholesale by the ference to a guild. Dr. Maccowan assures | swords of Japan. For fineness of temper and exempted by this Ordinance. The next alteration is more in the nature of an addition. It used to read "clergymen and edissenting ministers." It now reads "Clergymen of the Church of England, Roman Catholic Priests, and Ministers of any congregation of Protestant Dissenters or of Jews; provided they follow no secular occupation except that of Schoolmasters." Section 6 is new. It provides that exemption or want of qualification shall be no ground for impeaching the verdict of a jury. Another change is made in section 11. At present when specia jurors are summoned, twelve are summond, and out of these twelveouly seven serve on the jury It has been the custom to take the whole of these twelve names and place them in the ballot box, so that they are not called on again until the other names have been exhausted. It is now proposed to make the five who have not served liable to be called npon again. At present they are exempted drift-against-the edge. The fact is the Japanese for the whole year, merely for having been summened. Now, they will only be exempted if they have been summoned and have served on a jury. The greater part of Section 13 is new. It relates to the proceedings to be taken for setthing and striking a special jury. This pratice has always been followed, but there has been no positive enactment for it. This now settles the pratice and it will be followed in future. Section 14 is new. It states "In forming any panel the Registrar shall pass over the names of all persons who are dead or absent from the Colony, but shall return to the Special Jurers Bailet Box or Common Jurors Ballot Box (as the case may require) the names of any temporary absentess, which may be drawn." This is, I may merely sanctioning what has the pratice, although no law was vided for it. In drawing the jury, if Registrar draws from the box the name

The ACTING ATTORNEY-GENERAL said that sub-section a of the first section anthorized the court to punish with whipping an offender convicted of any felony not punishable with death committed after two previous-convictions for felony. It had been thought desirable to somewhat limit that. Otherwise a person might be exposed to whipping who had comnitted two very small offences. It had been thought desirable to limit that and state that the two convictions must have been serious ones for which he had undergone six months' imprisonment. He therefore moved the addition the words " Provided that the offender shall have suffered on each of the said convictions six months' imprisonment at least."

The Acting Chief Justice-The Chief ustice spoke to me on this subject before he went away. He was afraid it might be considered the Court was bound under this Ordinance to inflict whipping, but I think it is entirely discretionary. There might be cases where the court would not think it at all right to inflict this punishment, and it would only be in very serious cases I think that the Court would exercise the power. The Court is always governed by a certain practice, the cursus curios, and-florging would not be inflicted after two petty offences, but if there were a very bad case no doubt it would be very important to have the power. The proviso, too, I think, will meet the objections that have been urged

The clause was then amended as follows-Provided that the offender shall have been sentenced to at least six months' imprisonment on each of the two said convictions." The other clauses of the Bill were nassed without amendment.

THE THE ATRE-RCYAL.

Last night at the Theatre Royal the above Club gave their third performance of the season when they produced "A Comical Countess," by William Brough, and H. J. Byron's comedy "Old Soldiers." The house was crowded, every available seat being occupied. His Excellency Major-General Cameron and the Misses Cameran were among those present. "A Comical Countess" is a very bright and pretty comedictta, rather superior to the usua order of "curtain raisers." The scene of the piece is laid in France. A public evening fête Bill in a way satisfactory to all parties. In the confusion which follows, the Chevalier de Vilbrac. in making his way out of the gardens, has the mis whom he believes to have been the reigning favourite, Madame Pompadour. Fearful of the consequences of his act, he disguises himself as his own lacquey, and in this character obtains a situation in the house of the Countess de l'Espalier. The Countess is no other than the waiting maid of the mother of the Chevalier. his younger-days, but of whom he has since lost of the creditors for $100 borrowed on a promissight. Since that time the waiting maid, by a fortunate marriage, has become a Countess, but ago. She however, almost immediately penetrates the disguise of the pretended servant. A number of amusing incidents take place, the comic element of which is considerably angmented by the fact that the Chevalier is continually forgetting himself in the rôle he has, assumed. A quarrel ensues with a cousin of the Countess, Baron de Bergonce, who is a sniter for the lady's hand and property. When the quarrel is about to assume a critical stage, the Chovalior reveals his it was she who was struck at the fête. Apologies tess bestows her hand on the Chevalier.

Mrs. Whittall's Mrs. Major Moss was not quite so happy an effort as her Countess in the THE AMATEUR DRAMATIC CLUB AT preceding piece, although she worked hard The lighter comedy of the first charactor was evidently more suited to her. Still, she may be fairly said to have carried away the palm as far as the ladies were conc. raed. On the whole the performance was scarcely equal to former representations of the Club. It is only justice, however, to say that the actors were word perfect, and much praise is due to Capt. Bunbury for the excellent manner in which the arrangements behind the curtain were carried out. The scenery was also good, both pieces being well staged.

The Band of the Northamptonshire Regiment was present and played an overture and some pleasing selections between the acts.
